DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE COTTON CROP OF 1927-28—INTERMEDIATE MONTHLY REPORT.

Working of cotton is in progress throughout the Presidency.

Rains in the first fortnight of February improved the condition of the crop in the Central districts and the South. The first pickings are expected to give a normal yield in Trichinopoly and the South.

The yield of sugarcane, or early cotton, in the Deccan is expected to be above normal, but the heavy, or late cotton, has been affected by rain and cloudy weather experienced in early February. There has been shedding of tender bolls and flowers and the budding of bolls has been delayed.

The yield in the Coimbatore tract is expected to be normal.

GENERAL CROP OF 1927-28—INTERMEDIATE MONTHLY REPORT.

Reviews of late generally are over. The condition of the crop is fairly satisfactory, except in Chingleput, South Arcot, Ramnad and Tanjore, where the supply of water in irrigation sources was insufficient for the proper growth of the crop. Grasshopper attack is reported from Tanjore and the western parts of Ramnad.

SPOONCANE CROP OF 1927-28—INTERMEDIATE MONTHLY REPORT.

Harvesting and sowing of the sugarcane crop are in full swing. In Bellary the crop has turned out to be slightly better than the normal crop forecasted in January. The crop has been affected by wet rot in parts of Salem and the Aravalli taluk of Coimbatore.

By-laws:
 Bill No. 36 of 1905—Indian Merchandise Marks (Amendment)—Telugu, Kannara, Malayalam and Hindustani.

Bills introduced in the Council of State and Legislative Assembly, Reports of Select Committees presented to the Council and Assembly and Bills published under Rule 18 of the Indian Legislative Rules.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Legislative Act, 1902, was presented to the Council of State on the 11th March 1905.

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Legislative Act, 1902, was again referred, have reconsidered the Bill again, and the papers noted in the margin (containing the opinions stated) after consideration of the Bill, and we have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as further amended by an amended Clause.

1. We find that clause 5 has practically unanimous support, and calls for no further remarks from us.

2. Clause 6 has general support but has also been criticised by some on several points. One provision which has been attacked is the date from which time begins to run under the proposed Articles 48-A, 48-B and 124-A; but we find that all the suggestions advanced had already been considered by us when making our first report, and we have found no reason to depart from our previous recommendation. There can be no doubt that of the three possible starting points, namely, (i) the date of the transfer, (ii) the date of delivery of possession, and (iii) the date proposed by us, the last has the greatest weight of evidence behind it, including that of all the High Courts in India. We recommend, therefore, that these Articles should be adopted as drafted by us.

4. Some criticism, however, has been advanced of Articles 48-C and 124-B, which we feel compelled to meet. It is pointed out that as these Articles give each successive manager a right to sue, they really impose no definite period of limitation, but will lay the onus of a transferee for sales open to the risk of a suit perhaps several generations after all chance of obtaining evidence has disappeared. The strength of these criticisms is weakened when section 7 of the Charitable and Religious Trusts Act, 1920, is taken into consideration, for that section affords a means for obtaining possession of a genuine transfer for legal necessity. Nevertheless, we admit the cogency of the criticism, and we propose to put a definite limit of time upon the bringing of suits by managers to set aside transfers made by their predecessors. We propose to take as the starting point the death, resignation or removal of the transferring manager, and to adopt as the period of limitation the twelve years which is usual in all similar cases.

5. Where the subject of the transfer is immovable property, then in the majority of suits the new Article will have much the same effect as the provision we originally proposed, for the chances of a suit being brought after the expiry of twelve years from the death of the transferring manager are small, and are likely to diminish rapidly as time goes on.

6. As regards movable property, our decision to fix a definite limit of time for the bringing of these suits re-opens the question of the duration of the period of limitation; for, while three years seemed enough so long as such successive managers had a right to sue, it seems inadequate when limitation is to begin from and end finally as a definite date. We propose, therefore, to retain the original period of twelve years, and to achieve this we have transferred Article 48-C and included it in the schedule as article 124-C, with the necessary change in the third column.

7. We considered the suggestion that these new articles should include a specific reference to Sikhs and Jains respectively, but think that this seems to be both unnecessary and undesirable. There is no reference anywhere in the Limitation Act to Sikhs or Jains, and if we insert a sentence like the other provisions referring to Hindus right thereby but the application which they now have to Sikhs and Jains. Again, these new articles are not in themselves restrictive law, but merely impose limitations on suits to establish rights which arise under Hindu law; and it has always been considered that Sikhs and Jains are subject to Hindu law except in so far as they may have varied it by their own customs. We think the safer course is to omit specific reference to Sikhs and Jains.

9. The Bill, as first amended by us, was published in the Gazette of India on the 17th September 1927, and in the local official Gazette as follows:—

MINUTE OF DISSENT.

We regret we are unable to agree to much that is contained in clause (3).

The only portions with which we agree are those relating to two new Articles relating to suits by managers of endowments in respect of properties which were sold for valuable consideration by a previous manager, presumably for purposes not binding on the endowment. These Articles (134 B and 134 C) as further amended by the Select Committee on the 24th February 1928 pursuant to a period of 12 years from the death, resignation or removal of the existing manager, and the plaintiff may be his immediate successor or a remote successor provided he is in a position to sue within the said period of 12 years from the alienating manager's death, resignation or removal. Thus we consider it a sound provision and it affords reasonable protection to the beneficiaries as well as the estate.

The rest of clause 3 besides with difficulties of a serious character and we cannot subscribe to its provisions as they at present stand. Our objections are as follows:—

(1) The question of Article 183 and renumbering it as 48-A thereby cancelling the existing 12 years' period, for recovery of trust moneys, to 3 years is in our opinion unwarranted for and prejudicial to the interests of the trusts concerned. This Article has been in existence ever since the Indian Limitation Act was first enacted and nothing is said in the Statement of Objects and Reasons in justification of the proposed change. The moneys mentioned in Article 48-B may consist of wages, profits, shares, of worship like Saligram, accounts from Government and so forth. When a trustee intentionally or fraudulently alienates such properties there is no conceivable reason why the beneficiaries' right to recover them or their value in the alternative should be barred in three years from the date of knowledge. In the case of public trusts and endowments, the rights of the beneficiaries to sue for the benefit of the trust or endowment is not coupled with any corresponding duty to do so and more often than not they will be slow to move in the matter. The new provisions will therefore operate as a serious curtailment of the existing right.

(2) The new Articles 134-A and 134-B, which deal respectively with suits to set aside sales of movable properties and transfers of immovable properties acquired in a Hindu, Mohammedan or Buddhist endowment, are in our opinion open to attack on more than one ground.

(a) Firstly, the scheme of these Articles is to place, for purposes of limitation, beneficiaries as a different footing from the successors of the alienating manager and give a different starting point of limitation to them. The object presumably is to give additional protection to the beneficiaries of an endowment in cases where the successors of the alienating manager may fail through neglect or collusion to impeach the alienation. Even so, the period of 12 years from the death, resignation or removal of the alienating manager ought to suffice in the case of the beneficiaries also. The period of 12 years from the date of knowledge in the case of beneficiaries may be unduly short, but 12 years from the death, resignation or removal of the alienating manager when the latter lives and continues in office for an appreciable length of time after the date of the alienation. In as far as it is shorter it is a curtailment of the beneficiaries' right as compared with the alienating manager's right in the matter of the period of limitation for their respective suits. In most cases the knowledge of the beneficiaries will be antecedent to the death or removal of the alienating manager and in the case of removal it will be almost always so, for the wrongful alienation will normally be one of the grounds for removal. Except in rare cases, the date of transfer of possession will coincide with the date of knowledge. The fact that in the vast majority of cases the bulk of the beneficiaries live in proximity to the alienated and alienated properties will render cases in which beneficiaries' knowledge will be subsequent to the death or removal of the alienating manager and rare in practice. Even when a beneficiary consistently goes a longer period than a manager we shall presently show that it will avail the former very little and will in effect be illusory to promise. The easiness of the property being first leased and then sold thus making it impossible for the beneficiaries to know the change in the character of the vendor's possession is also one of mere convenience in our opinion. If however it is considered to be a matter of grave importance it may be provided against by suitable words to ensure that possession which is the starting point for limitation is postponed until such time as the parties to possession set up a hostile and open title against the trust, as in cases of adverse possession in similar circumstances under article 165. But we consider that to be too strict a rule.

(2) Thirdly, the sale contemplated by these articles to set aside sales and transfers are clearly of a declaratory character. It is no doubt true that appropriate consequential relief may be asked for, but the only relief that will be effective in protecting the trust is the evulsion of the houses and the restoration of the property to the mortgage for the time being. This remedy is in our opinion often unavailable to the beneficiaries in actual practice. The final court orders in question limit to 40 referees must first being put in each year as on sale for possession, and such force in most cases are as heavy as it can be effective deterrents on beneficiaries indulging in them. Moreover we entertain serious doubts as to the enforceability of such orders in all cases. The Madras High Court consistently held that in suits under section 94, Civil Procedure Code, an decree from the plaintiff trustees could not be impounded and that no decree could be passed for the properties being put back into the possession of the rightful trustee. The latter is directed to a fresh suit for possession. In such cases if the trustee or the mortgage is himself barred by limitation from suing for the recovery of possession, or if he fails to do so owing to neglect or omission the decree obtained by the beneficiaries is set aside the alienation is rendered nugatory and infructuous. So even when a beneficiary occasionally gets a longer period than a managing manager under the scheme of these articles the net result would be practically all for properties could not be back without the manager's assent which is not available when he is himself barred.

(3) Fourthly, it seems to us that the difficulties which are likely to arise by making the date of knowledge the starting point of limitation are very many. One of the difficulties is that pointed out by the Government Counsel of Public and Crown on the strength of the opinion of the learned Judges of the Madras High Court. We very strongly agree with the view that the proposal will not only put a premium on false evidence but will defeat the object which the Civil Justice Committee had in view of lowering litigation, referred to pass in precisely the opposite direction (see opinion No. 15, page 25 of the opinion).

Another difficulty is that pointed out by the learned Judges and the Advocate General of the Madras High Court, viz., that different starting points of limitation in the case of different plaintiffs which arise at the date of their respective knowledge will lead to anomalous results. If, for instance, when two or more plaintiffs join in a single suit under section 94, Civil Procedure Code, or order 4, rule 4, Civil Procedure Code, the date of whose knowledge are different, how is the question of limitation to be decided? Again, if different beneficiaries institute separate suits in respect of the same affection and some of the suits are barred, while others are not with reference to the varying dates of knowledge of the plaintiffs, what is the result?

Other instances of anomaly may be easily mentioned.

A third difficulty which comes to us arises from the operation of section 25 of the Limitation Act. Assuming that that section applies to suits of this character and to beneficiaries' rights, it is possible for a large number of beneficiaries to get time barred resulting in the extinguishment of their rights, while one or two beneficiaries may still assert that they are within time. It is certainly an undesirable position.

If, however, the articles are proposed to be retained we are of opinion that the starting point should be the date of possession under the revocable transfer as suggested by Justice Pathak and Commissioner Sanki of the Madras High Court and some others.

Finally, the opinions received are strongly in favour of the inclusion of both endowments. We doubt whether the word Hindu would comprehend them specially having regard to the specific mention of Buddhist endowments. The general scheme of the Limitation Act if altered to should have the omitted reference to the Zaidhams.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1924, for certain purposes was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 20th March 1928.

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill further to amend the Indian Tariff Act, 1924, for certain purposes was referred, have considered the Bill and have now the honour to submit this our Report, with the Bill as amended by us annexed thereto.

1. The only amendment we propose in the Bill is in Item 4 of the Schedule, which makes an amendment in Item No. 190 of the Second Schedule to the Indian Tariff Act, 1924. The intention is to allow all lithographic plates to be imported free of duty; and we have amended the intention by deleting the word "lithographic" from Item No. 190. This is more in line with the intention of the Bill of making a category.

2. The Bill was published in the Gazette of India of the 20th February 1928.

3. We think the Bill has not been so altered as to require re-nomination, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

MINUTES OF DISSENT.

We are unable to approve the proposal in clause 11 to raise the import duty on white Portland cement. Our objections are two-fold. In the first place as generally we prefer specific duties. It is a great mistake to suppose that the duty on an article should be certain instead of varying with each fluctuation of the market price. In the second place, we object to a discrimination between two qualities of the same commodity. The ingredients are practically the same and only vary in percentage, and the mere fact that white Portland cement is more highly priced does not appear to us an adequate reason for reverting to a general ad valorem duty. We further understand that the effect on various industries will be of little consequence.

PARAL I. RAHIMYULLA.
W. B. J. WILLISON.
W. S. LAMB.

I do not agree with the Committee's recommendations regarding clauses 7 and 11 and reserve to myself the right of moving amendments at the proper time.

PARAL I. RAHIMYULLA.

I regret very much that I have to append my dissenting vote to a Bill which looks to be quite harmless. The Bill aims at incorporating some of the measures which are already in force by modification, and therefore it is claimed that it will serve a very useful purpose if the Bill is brought on the Supply book. I consider it to be very objectionable that measures are adopted by notification without even making a statement in the Assembly to that effect. Further, it is much more objectionable that an early step is not taken to make the necessary amendment in the Act and such amendments are delayed measures for more than a year. The steps taken in the present case may not be very serious, but all the more it affects a point of general principle. I think the House should make it a rule that every such notification should be brought to the notice of the Assembly at the earliest opportunity and early steps will be taken to incorporate the amendments into the Act unless it be necessary to delay the same on account of some experimental measure.

Clauses 8 and 14.—These two clauses give effect to the report of the Indian Tariff Board on the salt industry. I take strong objection to the introduction of the Bill of such a nature without saying so. A Bill for the protection of any industry should not be introduced in such a way. The House should be given an opportunity of discussing the Bill as a protective measure. The Bill for the protection of salt industry should have been introduced as such.

The Government has not done full justice to the recommendations of the Tariff Board inasmuch as the Government has not accepted the recommendation of abolishing the duty on black powder. The Government is not giving any direct answer from the report of this article. We are told by the Tariff Board that black powder is not used for any other purpose besides blasting the bells. It was a very strong case and the Government ought to have accepted the proposals of the Tariff Board. The House must have expressed its opinion on this point at the time of the introduction of the Bill if the Bill would have been introduced as a protective measure for the salt industry. I am sorry that by the rules we are precluded from amending the Act so as to abolish the duty on this article.

The words "and exemplify" should be omitted from subsec. 5 and 13 and the word "and" be inserted between the words "exemplify" and "hold". Caneen ply is not made in any large extent in this country, and there seems to be absolutely no reason why the more of this article should be produced. I am conscious of the fact that the Tariff Board has recommended for their imposition of duty on this article, but from the report it is quite clear that they had no information about the import of this article in the country. This being is mostly used in rice factories and it seems to be an unnecessary penal measure for the rice factories of Ceylon. Therefore I propose that caneen ply should be imported free of duty as heretofore.

Section 12—I am against the reduction of duty on cereals. We are told that if we reduce the duty on this article we shall have the best treatment from the Government. From the information that I could get it is very the case (unless) that we export to Ceylon, and in the sale of these articles there is no competition of Indian goods in the Ceylon market. I do not understand why the Government did not take this House into their confidence before agreeing to such an important measure. If the Government has placed us in this awkward position they are themselves responsible for it. The House should not be a party to this measure. Cereals are produced in this country and the duty on this article ought to remain as before. Besides, I do not understand how do we help Ceylon by agreeing to reduce the duty on this article. In the last five years an average Ceylon has exported in India cereals of the value of about 2,400 rupees a year out of the total average import of about 3 per cent of the total import of this article into the country. I do not understand as to why we should lower the cereals were this article simply because they are imported to a very small extent by Ceylon. Even if this is such an important point, let Government give a special preference to cereals imported from Ceylon. When we have already recognized the principle of preference of British goods in the case of rice let the principle be extended to the case of this article imported from Ceylon. I therefore recommend that this clause be deleted.

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill in pursuance of the modification of certain import duties relating to the protection of the steel industry in British India was presented to the Legislative Assembly on the 14th March 1923.

We, the undersigned, Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to provide for the modification of certain import duties relating to the protection of the steel industry in British India was referred, have considered the Bill and have now the honour to submit this our Report with the Bill as amended thereto.

The main object of the Bill is to protect the Indian wagon industry by raising the present revenue duty of 10 per cent ad valorem on wagons and wainwrights under-frames to a rate of 15 per cent ad valorem, with a further duty of Rs. 10 per ton where these articles are not of British manufacture. While we are keenly alive to the need for protecting the Indian wagon industry, we regret we cannot accept the proposal put forward by the Government to achieve this object. Our reason for rejecting the proposal is that the measure of protection proposed in the Bill is in excess of the recommendation of the Tariff Board. In our opinion any proposal to increase a measure of protection recommended by the Board must be supported by strong reasons; and, after carefully considering the reasons given by Government in this instance, we have come to the conclusion that they are not strong enough.

On the evidence before them the Tariff Board found that, under the conditions of the bounty scheme, the wagon industry has made great progress and is now able to meet a large proportion of the normal demand for wagons and under-frames in India, and that the wagon manufacturers have reached a stage when they can ordinarily withstand foreign competition without any assistance other than the existing bounty duty. Whenever, therefore, the demand for wagons and under-frames is normal, there is no need for protection. The need for some form of assistance has arisen just now from the fact that the requirements of the Indian Railways for wagons and under-frames for some time will be below the normal requirements. To meet this situation the Tariff Board have recommended that until the demand for wagons and under-frames reaches a total of 5,000 annually (in terms of G-2 wagons), all orders should be placed in India by competitive tenders from Indian manufacturers. The Board further found that it is desirable to fix maximum prices within which tenders will be accepted, and announced that, subject to these adjustments, such maximum prices should be fixed at the level of the lowest registered i.e. prices, anywhere in the tenders for wagons in November 1922, and for under-frames in April 1924, with an addition of 15 per cent.

The main reason advanced for deviating from the recommendation of the Board is that the protection recommended by the Board will prove inadequate if the number of wagons ordered is less than 2,000, or if small orders for the various types are given. It was next three contingencies that the Government propose a 17 per cent import duty.

We think that the Tariff Board has given due consideration to the factor of the variations in types. In paragraph 63 the Board observes that "some allowance must be made on account of the fact that orders placed will represent a greater variety in the types of wagons manufactured". Later on in paragraph 65 they observe, "we believe that in per centum we have provided a sufficient margin to meet probable variations in the number and types of wagons ordered". It seems clear that the Board has taken into consideration that factor in arriving at what they consider to be a reasonable price, and we do not consider that the presence of this factor is a sufficient reason for raising the duty. We agree, however, that where the number of wagons ordered of a particular type is small, it should be open to the Government of India to increase the maximum price within which tenders will be accepted.

Our objection to the Government proposal is centered by the fact that this proposal was actually considered by the Board and deliberately rejected. In paragraph 63 the Board observes "we therefore cannot agree to the proposal of Messrs. Brown and Company and the Indian Standard Wagon Company that a duty of 17 per cent should be imposed so long as the demand for rolling stock remains abundant". In the face of this considered opinion of the Tariff Board, we do not feel justified in agreeing to the proposal of the Government, which not merely increases the measure of protection recommended by the Board, but adopts a measure considered and rejected by the Board. Such a course of action may prove to be an undesirable precedent.

Apart from the above considerations, we must draw attention to another aspect of the question. The Tariff Board lays emphasis not so much on the price to be given, as on the necessity of placing all orders in India. In paragraph 66, the Board observe "At the same time, it must be recognized that if orders are placed by competitive tender received both from India and abroad, exceptional circumstances may occur which would result in orders being lost to India in spite of a higher duty. Even if the orders so lost were few, the effect on the Indian industry might be something unfortunate, and in the case of the Indian Standard Wagon Company, which manufactures wagons only, might result in the closing of the works and all the hardship which unemployment entails for the Indian staff. On the whole, therefore, we think it advisable to maintain the existing revenue duty of 10 per cent and to arrange that all the orders are placed in India." Provided this aspect of the question is kept fully in view by the Government of India, there will be no need, we think, for a higher duty.

No case has been made out for the extra duty of Rs. 15 per ton on wagons and underframes of New-English manufacture. The difference in quality between British and New-English steel was admitted in support of the preferential treatment provided for in the Iron Steel Protection Bill passed by the Legislature. In the case of manufactured articles like wagons and underframes, we believe, the article will have to pass the test of the Railway Board which is based on British standard specification, and the question of difference in quality will not arise. If the extra duty were to operate it would give to Indian manufacturers more protection than they are entitled to receive. If the additional duty is so great as to be prohibitive, there is no purpose in proceeding for it in the Act. In our opinion, therefore, no case has been made out for the differential duty proposed in the Bill.

For all these reasons we have not been able to accept the proposal contained in the Bill. We have been advised that from the dwelling point of view it is not possible to incorporate the recommendation of the Tariff Board in the present Bill. We, therefore, recommend that the proposals of the Tariff Board for the protection of the sugar industry may be given effect to either by Resolution in the Assembly or by some other suitable means.

This measure involves the deletion of Clause Nos. 2, 3 and 4 from the Schedule in the Bill, the deletion of sub-section (d) of clause 2, and the amendment of the Preamble. We have carried out these amendments, and have re-numbered the Items in the Schedule.

Clause Nos. 4 and 5 of the Schedule in the Bill as introduced in the Assembly, now Clause 2 and 3 of the Bill as amended by us, have the effect of abolishing the protective duty of Rs. 2 per cent. on certain kinds of wire and rods. Among the reasons given by the Tariff Board for the abolition of this duty was the fact that the Indian steel Wire Products, Limited, the only Company which then manufactured steel wire and rods in India, had gone into liquidation. We now learn that the efforts of this Company have been acquired by a private individual; but we must have known, when making his purchase, that the continuance of the protective duty on steel wire and rods was no longer sustainable, as this was made clear in Government of India (Department of Commerce—Board) Resolution No. 162-E (S), dated the 17th July 1924. We, therefore, see no reason to depart from the recommendations of the Tariff Board that the protective duty on wire and rods should be discontinued, and that the question may be re-considered when the manufacturers of wire and rods as commercial units are established in India.

We recur to the proposal contained in Clause 2 of the Bill as amended by us, that the duty on iron or steel bars and rods should be raised to Rs. 2 per cent. as recommended by the Tariff Board. *

The Bill was published in the Gazette of India of the 3rd March 1924.

We think the Bill has not been so altered as to require republication, and we recommend that it be passed as now amended.

MINUTE OF DISSENT.

I am unable to agree to the inclusion of the clauses in the Bill which provide for an increase in the duty on wagons, carriages, motorframes and their component parts. I fully accept the view of the Tariff Board that, until orders for wagons are again placed on a normal scale, all orders should be placed in India subject to a maximum price, and that in fixing the maximum price an addition of 17½ per cent to the prices paid in 1923-24 will serve as a general guide. But if the Indian wagon building firms refuse to take the orders at the maximum prices which Government might reasonably expect, there will be an alternative but to call for simultaneous orders, and if the duty remains at 17½ per cent, there is a danger that some of them may be sent to the Indian firms. For this reason the increase of the duty appears to me to be necessary.

G. BAILEY.

NOTE.

The Government of India have rejected the Tariff Board's recommendations for protection of steel castings by bounty. We recognize that the question of bounty is not technically within the scope of the Bill, and are therefore prevented from making any provision in this Bill for the protection of this industry by bounty even if some of us were so disposed. We want to remind Government of the conditions on which payment of bounties was made dependent in the Steel Industry (Protection) Act of 1924, the principle of those conditions being that a substantial portion of the materials used in the manufacture of wagons shall be of Indian origin. In so far as steel castings form a component part of wagons, a strict enforcement of this condition is likely to afford this industry some measure of indirect protection. And it is in the confidence that these conditions will strictly govern the placing of orders for wagons hereafter, that we do not consider it necessary to press for any legislative provision in this behalf.
